

CASTINO IS DISCHARGED.

The Prosecution Made No Case Against Him.

LEVI BECTEL IN A BOX.

Evidence Showing That He Had the Stolen Property.

Actions Brought in the Third District Court—Proceedings Before Commissioners and Justices—The P. O. S. of A. Litigation—Short Orders.

The case of most interest in the minor courts yesterday was that of John Castino, charged with stealing a horse and buggy belonging to W. Workman, of this city. The case came before Commissioner Pratt, County Attorney Murphy prosecuting, and the defendant was represented by Barris and Koenen.

Mr. Workman, the prosecuting witness, testified that he had fastened up his horse and buggy near the Warm springs and gone to transact some business in the neighborhood, and that on his return he found both gone. Sheriff McQueen was put on the trail, and eventually found the horse grazing in a pasture near the defendant's ranch at Grantsville, and the buggy covered with hay on his premises. Sheriff McQueen was not on the stand and testified as to the finding of the horse and buggy, and S. S. Worthington gave similar evidence.

The prosecution put Miss Deepain and her sister on the stand, and they testified that the buggy had been brought to Castino's place by Levi Bectel, the man who was held in $1,000 bond, to the grand jury for cattle stealing. Bectel brought the buggy early one morning whilst Castino was in Salt Lake, took the wheels off and partially covered it with hay. This was on June 23. On June 24 Castino returned from Salt Lake and was surprised at hearing that Bectel had brought a buggy to his place.

John Castino in his own defense swore that he was absent at Salt Lake when the buggy was brought to his place; that he knew nothing about it until his return on June 24; that an unknown man came around and said the buggy belonged to him and wanted the defendant to buy it for $125, partly to be paid in cash and partly in horse or fat cattle, but defendant refused to purchase and the man left, but returned in two or three days and again tried to make a sale, but without success. He then said he was on his way to Durango to engage in mining operations and asked permission to leave the buggy for a few weeks, when he would return and take it away.

John Morgan, the proprietor of the Morgan hotel, was called and testified that Castino stopped at the Morgan hotel in this city from June 21 to 23, and the buggy having been left at Castino's place between those dates, the prosecuting attorney consented that Castino be discharged.

It is believed that Bectel, now in jail waiting the action of the grand jury, had a hand in stealing the horse and buggy, and in all probability the charge will be preferred against him in addition to the one he already labors under.

On a Promissory Note.

The First National Bank of Deadwood, South Dakota, has entered suit in the Third district court against William C. Wilson, jr., and the Albany County National Bank of Laramie City, Wyoming, to recover $2,100 on a promissory note made by William C. Wilson, jr., on April 26, 1891, payable two years after date to the order of Wallace H. Christie. The note is secured to the extent of $2,000 by all mortgage on all block 2, lots 1, 2, 3, 4, 5, 6, 16, 17, 18, 19 and 20, in block 10, Capitol avenue addition, Salt Lake city, and said note was bought by the plaintiffs and said mortgage was assigned and delivered to plaintiff. Wherefore, judgment is demanded for $2,100 and interest at the rate of 1 per cent. per month.

Judgments Entered.

In the Third district court the following judgments were entered:

The Nicholas Kirkman company vs. John Egan; judgment for plaintiff for $37 and 50 cents.

Henry Dinwiddie Furniture company vs. B. R. Farnsworth; judgment for plaintiff for $427.70 and 26 cents.

J. J. Walton vs. Heber Young, as surviving partner of the firm of Heber Young; judgment for plaintiff for $383 and 50 cents.

A. T. Schroder vs. Ben W. Driggs, Milando Frost and Othello Pratt; judgment for plaintiff by default for $1,794 and 80 cents.

The National Wall Paper company vs. the Utah Paint and Oil company; judgment for plaintiff by default for $307.25 and 50 cents.

Hearing Continued.

In Justice Hall's court the case of Harrington & Donnelly vs. Alfred Jones, to recover $125 commission for sale of certain real estate, was continued on the application of the defendant and at his cost until August 4, at 2 p. m.

Suits Begun.

Angell company are suing P. Dewoody before Justice Hall to recover $61.12 for balance of an account.

L. W. Dittman has entered suit in Justice Hall's court against John Egan for $62 for beer.

Mrs. M. H. Wash has begun suit in Justice Hall's court to collect $8.65 for goods sold and delivered.

F. E. Gregg is suing Wm. Everell, Ellen Everell and Sylvester E. Smith in Justice Hall's court for $270 and interest on a promissory note.

Before Justice Kesler, C. A. Reid has entered suit against Sam Hainey for $129 for services rendered as custodian of certain brick.

L. C. Nelson is charged with the petty larceny of a fishing net. F. W. Christensen is the prosecuting witness. The case will come before Justice Kesler.

Salt was yesterday entered in Justice Whitehorn's court by N. Nelson vs. John Irving for $138.91 for work and labor performed.

Probate Court.

Orders were made yesterday in the probate court, by Judge Blair, as follows:

Estate of John W. Kerr; continued to Wednesday, Aug. 23, at 10 a. m.

Estate of Frank Crocker; hearing on citation to file account continued to Aug. 9 at 10 a. m.

Estate of Charles A. Johnson; order made setting Tuesday, Aug. 22, to hear account of administrator.

Estate of Frank H. Dwyer; order made setting Tuesday, Aug. 22, at 11 a. m., as time to hear petition of Winford Grissom, and directing citation to issue on the executors of said estate and the widow of said deceased.

In the matter of the adoption of Frank Carter Woodruff, minor; order setting Saturday, Aug. 26, at 10 a. m., to hear petition.

Court Notes.

Jones & Schroeder are preparing an amended complaint in the cases of J. M. Kennedy, S. F. Fenton, the I. O. O. F., Building association and the Freed Furniture company vs. W. A. Stanton, by which 150 members of the P. O. S. of A. society will be made defendants. The total amount involved is about $1,000 and the costs will run up to close on $1,300. This with the five suits commenced a few days ago makes nine against the P. O. S. of A. to be tried before Commissioner Pratt.

Judge Bartel returned yesterday from his trip to Idaho. He will probably sit in the Third district court on Saturday.

A SOUTHERNER'S VIEWS.

General Rick Looks for Legislation Favorable to Silver.

General B. S. Rick of Yazoo City, Miss., is at the Knutsford. He is a large planter and is also interested in mining in the south, and takes a strong interest in the silver question. Speaking on that subject to a HERALD man last evening Mr. Rick said:

"When Congress assemblies next week in special session, the south will be with the west to a man. We have not forgotten the services the western men rendered us in the defeat of the Force bill, and wish to become more closely allied with the west in our commercial relations. Senator George represents the district I live in, and he is a bi-metallicist, as is also our congressman, Mr. Williams. And while I only speak for my own state, I believe I voice the sentiments of the south. Give the country free coinage of silver and it will again enjoy prosperity and happiness. The people demand that Congress should legislate for the masses, and not for Wall street and London alone. Should the west and south withdraw their trade from New York, it would soon bring those people to their senses. The west has suffered greatly, and the south would have been injured as much had its money not been loaned upon cotton, which was easily converted into cash. Congress will have to give us some legislation favorable to silver."

General Rick expressed himself as delighted with Salt Lake, and was pleased to meet his "double," Colonel Merritt, for whom he has been taken a number of times.

SIX THOUSAND VOICES

To Sing the Grand Jubilee Chorus at Saltair.

Professor Stephens Making Great Preparations for the Concert of the Juvenile Choir on Monday.

The big tabernacle choir day at Saltair will not hold a candle to the children's concert, when 6,000 voices will be heard in the great pavilion.

It is proposed to augment the Juvenile choir—which in itself is 1,000 strong—to 6,000 and for that purpose invitations are extended to all children in Salt Lake city and its surroundings to attend the rehearsals in the Temple block on Friday and Saturday.

The Saltair managers have been as liberal in their terms to the Juvenile choir as they were to the Tabernacle choir, and it is expected that the attendance will be even greater than on the former occasion.

Saltair Notes.

The A. O. U. W. go to Saltair.

The two free shows a day at Saltair are much appreciated by the patrons of that resort.

The Pythian sisters had one of the most delightful days of the season at Saltair yesterday.

Professor Younger rehearsed the majestic polonaise for his children's carnival, which is to take place Aug. 16.

There are four entries for the $50 prize offered to the best lady and gentleman waltzers by the Saltair company, the contest to come off Friday night.

Saltair will break the record next week by giving eight excursions in six days. This is the largest number of excursion parties to visit a pleasure resort within the space of one week in the history of the territory.

The city and territorial I. O. O. F. lodges decided to give a grand excursion to Saltair Beach during the week of Aug. 21. The reputation of the I. O. O. F. as managers of excursions is sufficient assurance that this one will be the banner excursion of the year.

The summer season at Saltair is to be enlivened by a grand masquerade ball, for which lavish preparations are being made. The date fixed for this grand fête is the 18th inst. A number of valuable prizes will be tendered by the management for the best persons en masque, among which will be a ticket to the World's fair and return.

IN THE HOTEL CORRIDOR.

Rev. W. Bromley-Moore, an Episcopal clergyman from London, Eng., is at the Walker.

Mr. Moore is enjoying a pleasure tour, having just come into possession of a large estate at Buckinghamshire.

"I am personally acquainted with Lord Salisbury and Mr. Gladstone, don't 'cher know,'" said Mr. Moore to a HERALD man, "and I don't think Ireland should have home rule, as I have always been brought up a conservative, don't 'cher know, and College Green at Dublin will never see a parliament, as the northern Irishman who are the representative people of the 'Green Isle' say they don't want it, and the house of lords will not give it to them."

"Mr. Moore, do the English people favor a home rule bill for Ireland?"

"Don't 'cher know, my name is William Bromley-Moore, son of the great Bromley-Moore, ex-member of parliament, friend of Lord Salisbury and Queen Victoria and her son the gallant Prince of Wales, and her presumptive to the English throne?"

Call me Bromley-Moore. You Americans so like to drop a man's first name. Yes, I believe they do to a certain extent, but then those who do are under the leadership of John Bull, the labor agitator and member of parliament. The aristocracy certainly does not."

And the florid representative of British aristocracy retired for the night.

Julius A. David, the man that travels more than any other drummer, is at the Walker.

Mr. David represents Henry Mallard of Paris and New York, and is on the road twelve months in the year and crosses the "big pond" yearly to Switzerland and Paris in search of new ideas in bon bon for his firm.

RUSKIN'S ROMANCE.

How the Eccentric Critic Was Wedded and Divorced.

John Ruskin did a strangely wayward thing when he consented to get married. He did a most erratic, and, to the public, a most inexplicable thing when he arranged for his divorce.

He had accepted some of the loftiest traditions about womanhood that men sometimes read and talk about, and he looked for his ideal companion. One night he met her in the drawingroom of a London friend, who, without his knowing it, had brought the young lady to meet the eyes of the great writer.

It was a June night; he was 35, and she looked like a Greek goddess.

He was dazzled. She was a tall, graceful girl of 19, with a face and figure as faultless as one of the statues of old. No one ever expected Ruskin to fall in love, and he did not. She was poor, needed a home and its comforts, and so they were married.

Their wedded life was peaceful, friendly, kindly to the highest degree, but there was not a spark of affection to enlighten their existence. She admired the great man she had married and was grateful for the wealth and comfort he showered on her. He worshipped her as he would the marble made lifelike by the sculptor's chisel.

There was nothing human about the life they led as husband and wife, and she was a woman who, in her heart, like all true women, laughed at the traditions that made her sex love distant worship.

One day Ruskin brought an artist to paint his wife's picture. And the man was Millais, and he was a bright, cheery, handsome fellow, human every inch of him, with a great and absorbing love for the beautiful and a willingness to tell of his love.

He began to paint the portrait of the magnificent woman, and when he had finished he was in love with his friend's wife.

Woman-like she saw it, and perhaps she was not full of sorrow and reproach. It was the first tribute of real manly love that had ever lain at her feet.

And Ruskin! His wide eyes saw the romance that was weaving around those two lives, and his heart realized how little affection he had to lavish on the woman he had made his wife.

How he told her the story of his pride in her and the sacrifice he was to make for her, while she lay prone at his feet, is one of the things which only he or she could tell.

It is very difficult to obtain a divorce in England, but John Ruskin secured it for her, and one bracing morning in the early winter, a month after the divorce was granted, Ruskin stood beside the couple in one of London's quiet churches and saw them make man and wife.

That was a good many years ago, and since then Millais has become rich and famous and is now Sir John and his wife is Lady Millais.

The warmest, sturdiest friend the struggling painter had in his toiling days was the man whose wife he had married, and through all the years of Millais' later success and greater honor John Ruskin has been the welcome guest and almost daily visitor to the man and woman whose lives he so unselfishly crowned with happiness.

It is a strange story, and the world knows little about it, and some men have condemned him, as some women have censured her. But the two men and that one woman who we know best have been happy and contented with the change that John Ruskin's pure unselfishness brought into their lives. And so the world should not complain.—New York Commercial Advertiser.

FELL FROM A TREE.

A Son of C. W. Carter Meets with a Painful Accident.

The 12-year-old son of C. W. Carter, the photographer, met with a painful and perhaps serious accident at 7 o'clock last evening.

The boy was picking apples from the top of a tree, when missing his footing, he slipped, falling twenty feet to the ground, striking on his arm and head. He was carried into his home at 429 South First West street, in an unconscious condition.

Doctors Hughes and Niles were immediately summoned and did all that was possible to allay the boy's suffering.

Dr. Benedict was called in later and pronounced the injuries serious, but considers the chances for recovery good.

A Tremendous Sinking Tip.

This is what every system afflicted with chills and fever, bilious remittent, or any other form of malarial disease, undergoes periodically. Not only is malaria terrible in itself—it is the breeder of an infinity of bodily ailments. Specifics used for its prevention and removal prove, in the vast majority of cases, useless for every other purpose than to mitigate the disease and stave off its attacks. They are sure, with the average treatment, to return after a while. The sufferer may change his location to a healthier one, but the complaint, which is in his blood, is not thus lightly got rid of, and returns after the wonted interval. Organic affections of the nerves, heart trouble, general debility of the system are the offspring of malaria. Cure the originating cause and avert future physical injury with Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, efficacious also in liver complaint, inactivity of the kidneys, rheumatism and indigestion.
